Foley and three co-founders, all of whom have tech backgrounds, worked on the bike’s hardware and software for two years before the first unit shipped in January 2014. It was designed by Eric Villency, a kind of Jony Ive for stationary bikes, who also designed the silver or yellow bikes used in SoulCycle studios.